Tēnā Koe,

You are invited to participate in a questionnaire about disabled people's experiences of home and family in Aotearoa New Zealand.

He aha te kaupapa o taua nei rakahau?

What is this research about?

Aotearoa New Zealand is home to many diverse peoples, each with a unique understanding of 'home' and 'family'. But the way we think about home and family has evolved over time, with families taking on many shapes and forms.

In this study we want to ask disabled people and their family/whānau/aiga what they think about their right to home and family, and what respecting this right means in modern day Aotearoa New Zealand. The questionnaire will take approximately 30 - 60 minutes to complete, depending on how much you want to share.

Mē pēhea au i whakatapoko i taua nei kaupapa?

What do I do if I want to register my interest?
